A resident of Irvine, Mr. Oyler joined Pacific Life in 2002 as a public affairs analyst for the Corporate Division and is now the President of the company. Throughout his 17 years with the company, he has held a variety of roles of increasing responsibility including his most prior position as Vice President of Brand Management & Public Affairs, where he managed all aspects of Pacific Life's brand, corporate advertising, corporate publications, public and media relations activities, sponsorships, external corporate communications, crisis communications, as well as its local government initiatives.

In 2008 he also served as the company's Assistant Vice President of Public Affairs with responsibility for the management of the company’s public relations and media relations activities, including sponsorships and community relations. Mr. Oyler is also increasingly involved in the brand management and advertising functions of Pacific Life. He received his bachelor's degree in international studies from Brigham Young University and his Master of Business Administration from the University of California, Irvine.

One of his largest projects at Pacific Life thus far has been the implementation of the $7 million annual giving program of the Pacific Life Foundation, as well as Pacific Life’s employee volunteer groups. This Foundation along with the company’s employees’ support, has been one of the largest contributors to the success of the Paul Merage School of Business’s Center for Investment and Wealth Management, where Tennyson is an advisory board member.
