

Kevin Ciavarra is a Principal in the Los Angeles investment management tax practice of PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP and is the Southwest Market Tax Leader for the Los Angeles, Denver, Salt Lake City, San Diego, Orange County, Phoenix, and Las Vegas tax practices. He has over 20 years of experience advising investment managers on the tax and legal issues that affect private and public investment funds.

Prior to assuming his Southwest tax market leader role, Kevin was a client service partner in PwC's New York asset management practice. In that role, Kevin had a mix of clients that included a "Who's Who" of New York alternative asset managers. Before re-joining PwC, Kevin was a distressed portfolio manager with CapitalSource Finance, a publicly traded commercial finance company. Before CapitalSource, Kevin headed the Legal and Tax departments of Highland Capital Management L.P., a $40 billion alternative investment manager based in Dallas, Texas. Prior to Highland, Kevin worked in the tax departments of Strasburger & Price, LLP in Dallas, and PwC in Houston. Kevin received his J.D. from Southern Methodist University, his LL.M. (Tax) from Georgetown University, and his B.A. from The University of Texas at Austin.