Research

My research interests are focused on corporate strategy and corporate governance. My research examines how capital market constituents such as financial analysts and activist hedge funds influence board and executive decision making. My research on boards also examines the influence of gender diversity. My research is widely acknowledged by over 15,000 citations and has been quoted in the New York Times, The Financial Times, The Economist, Fortune, Business Week, and the Washington Post.

Consulting and Executive Education

I have provided expertise on the subject of strategic analysis, marketing strategy, business development, and strategic thinking with both private and public companies. I have also consulted with boards of publicly listed companies on the duties and responsibilities of the board of directors and the board’s role in providing strategic oversight and evaluating the company’s executives. In addition, I have developed custom executive programs for the senior management of a variety of organizations including Ingram Micro, Fluor Daniel, Conexant, Panasonic Aviation, UC Irvine Medical Center, Monarch Healthcare, and Children’s Hospital of Orange County. I organized the first Directors Corporate Governance Conference at UC Irvine and have taught in both UCI’s and UCLA’s Director Training Programs.
